Day 1

Really excited to learn more about the Marietta Campus. The first spot I headed was to see the concrete that floats, now that’s engineering for you!
Day 2

Got a little tired walking around today, so I thought I’d sit at this spot near the dining hall. Honestly, not very comfortable for a chair. This thing was as hard as a ... oh ... wait ... I get it now.
Day 3

Came out to see some flying pumpkins. Turns out I was about 5 months too late. Oh well. Maybe next year.
Day 4

Wanted to eat my lunch after touring the N Building. Tried to set my food on this table and it didn’t go well. I opted for a picnic instead.
Day 5

Studied up on my riddles and prepared to cross ... but nothing happened. I looked and looked, but I guess it turns out the only real trolls are online.
Day 6

Got in some much needed exercise today. Technically I got a birdie, but as a bird myself, I find that a little redundant. I get birdies everyday.
Day 7

Worked on some of my monologues today. While I was there, it got me to thinking: if all the world’s a stage, does this count as some sort of stage inception?
Day 8

Went out and threw bricks today. However, no building materials were wasted ... still working on my construction humor... I’ll show myself out ...
Day 9

Pretty sure I was in the wrong spot today, because it didn’t look much like a house, nor was it green at all.
Day 10

There's a lot of interesting history on this campus. When I sat and thought on it, I looked down and realized this is one of the few places where SPSU still exists.
